

Schools as Collaborative Cultures: Creating the Future Now (School Development and the Management of Change Series)

Teacher collaboration is a key activity in the developing school. The contributions offered here provide a set of improvisations on the same theme; that each school needs to establish a collaborative culture as a pre-condition for its own development. Associated themes touched upon here include bureaucratic schooling, democratic leadership, teacher professionalism and teacher involvement in decision-making and collegiality. Common themes running through the collection include - the creation of community in schools, the struggle to understand and develop the use of such ideas as commitment, collegiality and leadership, and the desire to rethink fundamentally how schools can change.
